Baseball. Lethbridge Won From Capitals.

In their game with Lethbridge last evening the Edmonton team started in great style and took a good lead, but at Lethbridge good batting on the part of the visitors and errors by the locals changed the look of things and gave the south armers the victory. Weak batting was shown by Edmonton: The Lethbridge pitcher, Schuch, was not hard to find, and his batters played a pretty good game, but the locals did not rise to the occasion. For Edmonton McAlaire did some good pitching, but received poor support. Score by Innings:

McLeod Will be General Manager

Toronto, July 2.--Second vice-president Hanna and chief engineer M. H. McLeod are in the east conferring with Wm. McKinnis and D. D. Mann on important changes among the officials of the C.N.R. in western Canada. Your correspondent learns on the best authority that Mr. McLeod has been appointed to the position of general manager, with headquarters in Winnipeg, thus filling the place vacated some months ago by E. A. James. Rumor has it that the latter will return to the C.P.R., having been offered a position of responsibility. Following up Mr. McLeod's appointment, the office of assistant to the general manager has been created and A. A. Warren, chief clerk of the manager's department, Winnipeg, is reported to have put in his resignation with an urgent request that it be accepted at as early a time as possible. Mr. Brown is reported to have refused to reconsider his decision and the Medicine Hat team has therefore been appointed to abolish the office and concentrate the authority with the general manager. Other minor changes will follow.

C.P.R. Officials in Strathcona

On Tuesday morning G. J. Burg, assistant general manager of the Western lines of the C.P.R., R. B. Jamieson, general superintendent, and J. Niblock, superintendent, paid a quiet visit to Strathcona and accompanied by assistant superintendent E. L. Chudleigh spent some time looking over the terminal work going on here. Mr. Burg is on a general inspection trip, and is accompanied through Alberta by Mr. Hastings, general manager of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., of Winnipeg. Mr. Hastings was noticing particularly grain conditions, and expressed himself as being very agreeably surprised at the growth of all grains he had seen in Alberta. Mr. Burg reports that the crop outlook is good and general business conditions very satisfactory. The private car in which the party are travelling was taken over to Edmonton later in the day.

CURRENT COMMENT.

We have seen that great fair at the Capital city and frankly we admit that it was a fraud and a failure, a libel and a slander on this portion of the fair province of Alberta.

If the management had taken the public into its confidence and made that honest confession which is said to be good for the soul, that the gathering of the people together was for the purpose of seeing a series of dog horse races, it would have been more honorable and would have served the same end, and it, provided an opportunity for the hotel keepers and merchants and a lot of fakirs to reap their harvest of wheat and tares.

There were a few honest horses and hogs that would do credit to Toronto Exposition at its best, but not enough to provide keen competition and they were there more for purposes of barter and sale than for prize winning. The Chronicle will name a pot of ink that it can name half a hundred county villages in Ontario at which township fairs are held that in all the features that should characterize a fair has the Edmonton exhibition beaten a long back.

The ladies' work displayed was surely not indicative of the artistic taste, the skill and ambition of our Western women. The dairy products were few and badly displayed. The manufacturers building should never have been so named. The dog show was a disgrace to the sport and an insult to the whole tribe of dog lovers. There were some good races that were so badly managed as to negative their every pleasing nature. Whoever mastered the ceremonies of the meet ought to retire on account of ill health or for some other extensible excuse and stay retired. Forty minutes elapsed between heats and an expectant crowd, haggard the fence, and waited to witness the long drawn out and badly bungled programme, mostly nothing but the usual programme. How long, O Lord, how long!

We have no objection to Edmonton gathering in the success from the highways and byways, the houses and gardens of earth and subjecting them to the tender mercies of the local hotel-keepers and cheap lunch vendors and fakirs from low Chicago, St. Louis and Buffalo, dives, but we politely protest against the management under the name of a "fair" that is presumed to give visitors an idea of the products, "recreation" and other characteristics of this district and this province.

Edmonton cannot afford as the capital and the leading centre of Alberta to place itself on record as a holdup city—the home and haunt and rich pasture plot of race track, the ten-cent fakirs, Bovey Bluffers and tin horn gamblers.

It ought to have been apparent to any one that at this time of year a fair in Edmonton would be impossible. The products of the rich soil of this district are in the growing and not until October at the earliest can an exhibition of them be collected. A summer race meet is all very well for those who like that sort of thing, but it should parade under its own name. The Edmonton event might be more properly described as a carnival. A carnival of fraud, of deception, of crookedness, of cheap imitation and smooth presumption.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

(Hamilton Herald.)

President Roosevelt said a wise thing in a recent address at the Michigan agricultural college in Lansing. The theme of his address was industrial education. What is meant to be feared for American industrialism, he said, is not the competition of foreign pauper labor with American labor, it is the competition of the highly skilled workman of the equals, of greatest industrial efficiency. "Balancing on this thought," he affirmed, "progress cannot permanently consist in the abandonment of physical labor, but in the development of physical labor, so that it shall represent more and more the work of the trained mind in the strongest body."

These truths apply with equal force to Canadian industrial conditions. But the importance of them is not realized in this country as it ought to be. In fact there is probably no civilized country with large industrial ambitions where so little thought is given as is given in Canada to the need of providing an education for the supply of skilled labor. The want of our industrial development and hope for an indefinite future. Most of the yet we take little thought of the prime necessity of such expansion.

tion—a steady supply of efficient skilled labor. To rely upon importation of skilled labor from other countries is rather hazardous. We cannot get their best at any time, and conditions might arise which would cut off the supply. It may be accepted as a demonstrated truth that no country can now rise to industrial greatness and maintain its position in competition with other industrial nations unless it possesses within its own borders the facilities for high-class industrial education; for turning out each year a fresh supply of graduates to fill the vacancies in the ranks of the industrial army caused by the retirement of veterans.

Germany's marvellous industrial development is due quite as much to her unequalled system of industrial education as to her scientific methods. She has set the pace for the rest of the world. From the primary manual training school to the technical university, the German system of industrial education is as complete as that of any other country. All the other European countries have long since realized the necessity of adopting the same policy. The United States is well up in the race. Canada lags far in the rear.

It is time for us to shake off our lethargy, to sit up and take notice of what is being done in other countries and compare their progressiveness with our backwardness in industrial matters. It is a subject for consideration by the national government and the provincial governments, too. It is the duty of the latter to initiate schemes of technical education, and it is the duty of the former to co-operate with the provincial authorities and assist in the good work. It would be pleasant to see our own Ontario government, which has shown so much courage and progressiveness in some directions, take the lead in this form of progress.

A TIME OF GREAT INVESTMENTS.

(Globe.)

The initial stages of a period of expansion are being marked with proportionate immediate returns. This is shown at the present time in the great expansion of industry into the Dominion, for it is in the last analysis, goods instead of money that we borrow abroad. The financial conditions of borrowing are adjusted by the shipment of goods, and the money borrowed abroad simply gives the Dominion the power of buying. The latest bulletin of the census and statistics bureau dealing with investments in manufacturing industries shows that the present period is one of construction and development, preparatory to production at full capacity. It also shows that the growth of the past five years has been phenomenal, and extends to almost every line of productive industry. A grand total of $819,931,175 employed as capital in manufacturing industries in 1906 gives the Dominion a new standing in the economic world, and the fact that this aggregate is an increase from $440,916,487 in 1900 affords a striking proof of the change that is now in progress. It is worthy of note that the ratio of output to capital invested is materially less than in 1900. This shows that many of our industries are still in the early or construction stage. It is not when buildings are being erected, machinery installed, and stores of raw material are being prepared that manufacturing industries make large returns in proportion to investments. It is not till operation is under way in proportion to the enlarged capacity that the output and investment show the regular economic relationship.

The increase in invested capital from 1900 to 1906 has been about 90 per cent, but the increase in output has increased only fifty per cent. This shows that our industries are still building and constructing preparatory to operating. This is of course in the aggregate, and shows an average condition. Our industries are working to their fullest capacity, but there are a sufficient number in the preparatory stage to materially affect the total ratio of output to investment. In rare and our work the ratio of production to capital was 151 in 1900, and only 104 in 1906. This is an instance showing that the capital which makes the later record is going into preparatory work which will become productive in future. In Portland cement works the ratio of output to capital was 86 in 1900 and only 16 in 1906, and in smelting the ratio has fallen from 67.5 to 32.5.

These and many similar instances show a condition peculiar to the initial stages of a period of expansion. A great volume of capital is being invested, not in immediate but in future production. Loan companies and other financial corporations float their debentures and bonds in Britain and help to furnish capital for local enterprise. Through such operations much that seems to be borrowed locally is really borrowed abroad. With this borrowed capital we purchase the great volume of supplies and material that make up our phenomenal rate of imports. There are no grounds for regarding the resultant balance of trade as unfavorable, as it would be so if the many industries for which it is a preparation had not a good outlook. But the investments that are increasing at a phenomenal rate are eminently sound and are fully justified by the commercial and industrial outlook. When the time for repayment comes this capital will be producing an output that will meet all claims and justify the enterprise of the present era of expansion.

GOOD WORK FOR CANADA.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The Frederick Gleaner, the politician and lawyer who has helped its editor, Jas. H. Crockett, to fight the battle of truth have done something for the country. The work of the Frederick Gleaner was partisan in motive. Its work was also patriotic in effect. Canadian clubs set lectures and listen to platitudes about raising the standards of our public life. Confessions and lectures of the same kind are on the decay of private manners and public morals.

The Frederick Gleaner risked the liberty of its editor in the discharge of a public duty. No sinner against wrongdoing is as impressive or eloquent as an example of the vice and degradation that follow wrongdoing. The work of the Frederick Gleaner will send the tremors of life among public men of Ottawa. Politicians have been taught that action of conduct is still required in public men and that the vice of a ferocious press is still a power that makes for righteousness.

"CASEY AT THE BAT"

Mr. Ernest L. Thayer's Poem is Given in Original Version—Its History.

To a Baltimore paper has come a letter establishing the history of that classic of the baseball field, "Casey at the Bat." The letter is from the author of the verse, Ernest L. Thayer, a Harvard graduate, whose home is in Worcester, Mass. "Casey at the Bat" was first published in the San Francisco Examiner June 8, 1888, over Mr. Thayer's non de plume, "Philo." Mr. Thayer was at that time writing a "funny column" for the Examiner, Mr. Thayer says: "Except as originally published in the Examiner, 'Casey' has never been correctly printed—barring one or two cases in which I have furnished the copy. The reason for this I will explain. When the poem was first copied by an Eastern paper the clipping editor cut off the opening stanzas and began where Casey advanced to the bat. "Later De Wolf Hopper began to give the complete poem as it was given to him by Archibald Gunther, who saw it in the Examiner. Some one who heard Hopper's recitation wrote out the first five stanzas from memory—and a bad memory he must have had—added them to the mutilated version as it was printed in the East and any of its exchanges, and then published a combination which has been printed up and down the land as 'Casey at the Bat.' I think that if the matter were of any importance the correct way to establish the authorship would be to let the different claimants produce a copy which might be compared with the poem as it was first printed in the Examiner. The original verses ran as follows: "CASEY AT THE BAT" (A Ballad of the Republic, Sung in the Year 1888.)

By Ernest L. Thayer The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Mudville nine that day: The score stood 4 to 2, with but one inning more to play. And then when Casey came to bat, and Barrows did the same, A sickly smile fell upon the patrons of the game.

A struggling few got up to go in deep despair, and clung to the hope which springs eternal in the human breast; They thought if only Casey could get a whack at that— They'd put up even money with Casey at the bat.

But Flynn preceded Casey, as he did also, "Dimmy" Blake. And the former was a lulu and the latter was a cake; So upon the stricken multitude grim For there seemed but little chance of melancholy act, getting at the bat.

But Flynn let drive a single, to the wonderment of all, And Blake, the much despised, tore the cover off the ball, And when the dust was lifted, and they saw what had occurred, There was "Johnnie" safe at second and Flynn a-bogging third.

Then from five thousand throats and more there rose a lusty yell; It rumbled through the valley, it rattled in the dell; It knocked upon the mountain and reflected upon the flat— For Casey, mighty Casey, was advancing to the bat.

There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place; There was pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face; And when, responding to the cheers, he lightly doffed his hat, No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed his hands with dirt; Five thousand tongues applauded when he wiped them on his shirt; Then while the writhing pitcher ground the ball into his hip, Defiance glowed in Casey's eye, a sneer curled Casey's lip.

And now the leather covered sphere came hurtling through the air, And Casey stood a-aching it in his gauntlet-gloved hand there. Close by the sturdy battman the ball whizzed sped; "That ain't my style," said Casey; "Strike one!" the umpire said.

From the benches, black with people, there went up a muffled roar, Like the beating of the storm waves on a sear, and distant shore. "Kill him!" "Kill the umpire!" shouted some one on the stand, And it's likely they'd have killed him had not Casey rolled his hand.

With a smile of Christian charity great Casey's visage shone; He stilled the rising tumult, he bade the game go on.

He signalled to the pitcher, and once more the sphere flew; But Casey still ignored it, and the umpire said "Strike two."

"Fraud!" cried the maddened thousands, and the echo answered "Fraud!" But one scornful look from Casey and the audience was awed.

Fullam Park The Cooking Lake Summer Resort is now on the Market.

This property is on the west end of the lake and right on the main trail.

The whole shore is sand and gravel which makes it the best bathing and boating shore on the lake. It is within three hours drive of the city on good roads, which are having more money spent on them this summer.

The whole view of this magnificent stretch of water can be seen from this property.

The land lies well above the water, the soil is sandy, and the ground has a natural slope towards the lake which makes it an ideal camping ground.

They saw his face grow stern and cold, they saw his muscles strain; And they knew that Casey wouldn't let that ball go by again.

The snarl is gone from Casey's lip, his teeth are clenched in hate. He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate. And now the pitcher holds the ball, and now he lets it go, And now the air is shattered by the force of Casey's blow.

Oh! somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright;

The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light, And somewhere men are laughing, and somewhere children shout; But there is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out.

East Lots of Almshouses.

According to a celebrated health expert, almonds give the higher nerve or brain, and muscle food, and whoever wishes to keep her brain power up would do well to include them in her daily bill of fare.

July Fruits give the same in less proportion and are eaten by all those whose living depends on their cash bonedness.

Applies apply the brain with rest. Prunes afford proof against nervousness, but are not muscle feeding. They would be avoided by those who suffer from the liver. But it has been proved that fruits do not have the same effect upon everybody.

The Soft Collars.

No matter whether a woman's face is thin or fat, long or short, the invariably looks better with her hair dressed softly. Hair that is drawn back tight from the face would not have the same effect of the prettiest woman ever seen.

Whether it is arranged high or low, however, depends entirely on the shape of the head and the lines of the face.

LEGAL TENDER.

The States of Conn, Bank Notes, Government Notes and Checks.

These are an agreement to make the only payment known to the law is gold. Primarily each is gold or silver. Gold is a legal tender for everything. Silver coins (except the dollars) are a legal tender for the amount of $10 only and the smaller coins, the five and one cent pieces, to the amount of 25 cents.

There are many kinds of paper money. Only one can be used in making a legal tender in all payments, the notes issued by the United States government and commonly called legal tender notes. National bank notes are a legal tender to the government, but are not a legal tender in payment of a debt to one individual to another.

A check is not an absolute payment of an obligation. It is no better than a note, and a note is not money. Most obligations, however, are settled by check. The receiver has a distinct duty to perform. He must present the check within a reasonable time to the bank on which it is drawn. Should he carry it in his pocket for several months and to the moment the bank should fail he would be the loser.

CHRONKOS

How is it that the Conservatives of Southern Alberta permitted the Northern Conservatives to capture the Conservative convention when all the opposition representation in Alberta comes from Southern Alberta?—Albertan.

Just to show that the party believes in passing the honors on and that its officers are chosen by the party and not, as in the case of their opponents, by the machine.

"I have no fear that if the Conservative party in Alberta place good men in the field and systematically organize, the party seats to Ottawa." This prediction was made by W. L. Walsh, a gentleman who had no fear of the result of the by-election in Glendora last December.—Albertan.

Let us see, what was the name of that Calgary morning paper that recently opposed Alderman Stuart? The Albertan itself is more remarkable for its kind since its first issue.

Was it only a coincidence that Peck's Bad Boy and the delegates from the Conservative convention struck Red Deer on the same day?—Albertan.

Yes, Peck's Bad Boy ran away from Calgary for fear some one would present him with the Alberta's munny pony and happened in Red Deer the day of the convention.

P.A. resolution was passed expressing confidence in the leadership of R. L. Borden.

With these words the Conservative convention at Red Deer came to an end and according to the official statement sent out from the convention.

But what about the leadership of A. J. Robertson, the leader of the opposition in the provincial legislature? Not a word was said about that gentleman and his very remarkable leadership. No confidence was expressed in his line of action, though he was right there in the flesh to receive the resolution had he so desired.

Why did the Conservatives ignore the member from Nanaimo who is leader in the House? Why did they not come along and pass a resolution favoring his action in the legislature and endorsing his conduct as leader of the opposition?

The reason is that the Conservatives of Alberta have not enough humor in their make up or imagination about them to believe that there is an opposition in the province of Alberta.

The mere fact that one member rises up occasionally to oppose and to make himself ridiculous does not constitute an opposition and the Conservatives know that it does not do so.

At the same time it is doubtful if any leader was placed in a more humiliating position than being forced to submit to the silent censure of the party supporting him.—Albertan.

The Albertan is suffering from a new type of disease known as Robert, scott. It had it in an acute form during the last session of the legislature but partially recovered. "We regret to learn of this new attack to our esteemed contemporary. If the disease becomes complicated with another to which the Albertan is subject, namely University Strathcona, there can be little hope held out for its recovery.

Thirty years ago Alexander MacKenzie wrote this to a political friend: "I would much like to be relieved of the public work department. It is the great spending department; the possible great jobbing department. Friends (?) expect to be benefited by office they are sent for, by contracts they are not satisfied to, by advances not earned. Enemies ally themselves with friends, and push the friends to the front. Some attempt to storm the office. Some dig trenches at a distance and approach in regular siege form. I feel like the besieged, lying on my arms night and day. I have attended at least twenty parliamentary sessions by my defence of the citadel."

Reported Ochre Find Near Saskatoon.

A report comes from Saskatoon to the effect that at Lake Lake, a place about thirty miles west of the mouth of the Elbow and sixty miles from here, has been located ochre of the richest quality, deposited in what seems almost unlimited quantities. Mrs. Agall, mining engineer of Quebec, a man thoroughly familiar with ochre mines previously, has returned from Lake Lake after a close examination, to accomplish which Mr. Agall made the trip from Quebec. It is his candid opinion that the mines show every appearance of having large quantities of mineral. He takes back with him samples from the lakes. Incidentally the engineer states that there is ochre to be made in the valley deposits from from grit, and improving the further back it goes.

While at the mine over 100 tons of ochre were removed. The vein was found to widen and improve on examination. The object of the trip was to prove the mine, for it had been examined about two years ago. The proving has been of the greatest satisfaction to gentlemen interested. It might be mentioned that the largest lode of red ochre in English mines is six inches wide.

LOST—Brown tin trunk out of O. P. R. station in Strathcona, labelled "Cooper and family." Came from England. Suitable reward for information leading to recovery. Apply to Chronicle Office, or Frank Cooper, Strathcona. 46 wily 47-48.

No More Stoking of Gatherers.

The monotonous, nerve-trilling work of stoking gatherers, or laying them, as it is sometimes called, may be entirely done away with by the following method: Use a long, slender needle and fine thread. Fill the needle with gatherers almost as full as it will hold. Squeeze these hard together, pressing toward the eye of the needle. When well squeezed, hold firmly in one hand and pull with the other. When the gatherers have passed from the needle they will be found as nicely laid as if done with a pin.

If the gatherers have been put in by machine, and none are nicer and more even, a little gentle pulling will make them set like hand-made gatherers.

The Brown Rot.

The brown rot is the most troublesome of the public work department. It is subject, but this disease and the emulsion may be at the same time controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture to which has been added potassium permanganate of lead or sulphuric—Bureau of Plant Indus-
